

Mobile Compatible Websites

A mobile compatible website is different from a normal website on major 3 grounds.

1. A normal website is optimized for specific screen resolution, screen height and screen width. Say for a 1024x768 screen. So if a visitor views this website on his mobile he will see a horizontal scrollbar. A mobile website will not show any horizontal scrollbar.
2. There are many items, browser plugin (like flash) are not supported by a mobile browser. So a mobile website are devoid of these items / code
3. A mobile website is always a trimmed version of the normal version. It does not include all the pages, a lot of info on a single page.

How to develop a responsive website?

The process of building a Mobile Compatible Website is exactly the same that of a normal website. However, when developing a mobile website, the developer should consider the 3 points motioned above.

We test the website on android and iPhone browser.

What does it Cost?

It depends on your requirement and how much of your website you want to include in the mobile version.
